Summary of reasons for decision:

The publication is the first disc in a two disc Blu-ray set featuring the 2009 movie "Funny People", which was previously released as a 35mm film. That feature was classified on 19 August 2009 as objectionable except if the availability of the publication is restricted to persons who have attained the age of 16 years, with the descriptive note "Offensive language, sexual material and other content that may offend".

This disc contains the same theatrical version of the feature, and an 'extended' version that is not appreciably different in terms of the criteria of the Films, Videos, and Publications Classification Act 1993. There are several additional components related to the feature that provide context and background. There are also a number of Blu-ray capabilities that are available to users who use their Blu-ray player to access the internet, but which are not part of the content of the disc itself.

There is nothing on the disc that requires a different classification to that given to the originally classified film. The disc is therefore also classified as restricted to persons 16 years of age and over, with the same descriptive note.
